Octave provides the students of MSIT an opportunity to learn and express themselves through their art. It's an Indo- Western Music Society, covering different realms. The reach of octave is not just limited to MSIT. Octave represents MSIT on multiple platforms by taking part in competitions and various fests like of IIT Delhi, IIIT Delhi, DTU, NSUT, DU etc. Along with this, Octave has performed phenomenally over the years at the IPU fest, securing second position as well and even stood third at the World Mental Health Fest organized by AIIMS, New Delhi to name a few.

With the support of the faculty, Octave manages to procure recognition for the college. In Octave, there's a strong student alumni bond. Where the seniors, who have an inclination towards music, guides the current student body. Former members went ahead and established bands like Ek-Taal and Saiyaara, which are quite successful. Apart from this, octave had the opportunity to perform at India Electronics Skill National inauguration organized by NSDC and Ministry of Skill Development. The performance was also televised.

Octave's achievements aren't just limited to the field of music. Since MSIT is a technical institute, members of this society managed to combine their passion with their profession and made an electronic guitar. Their research papers were appreciated and they received recognition for the same.

Octave isn't just for the virtuosos. Over time it has evolved to inculcate people who have any inclination towards music through music SIGs (Special Interest Groups). Octave believes in sharing whatever little have so, recently Octave took the initiative of organizing a Diwali fundraiser performance called Raunak, to help the deprived orphan kids. Besides all this the most recent accomplishment is that a band comprising of Octave Members performed and was ranked amongst top five teams across India at IIT Roorkee cultural fest 2019.
